Lost Treasures

for euphonium and piano

Lost treasures of the early euphonium repertoire composed for the obsolete ophicleïde or the trombone with six independent valves. A selection of original music by Belgian and French composers picked out of the dust and reconstructed by Luc Vertommen. Written as test pieces for the students at the Paris Conservatoire in romantic and virtuoso style to entertain the Parisian public of that era. This most interesting repertoire by virtually all forgotten composers proves that its time to rediscover these lost treasures.

All include three solo parts: Bb Euphonium treble and bass clef + C Euphonium

Lost Treasures is a significant voyage of discovery and given the immaculate performances of Glenn Van Looy, well matched by pianist Geert Callaert, a thoroughly absorbing 'listen' as well.

Paul Hindmarsh, British Bandsman

Glenn Van Looy's Lost Treasures can easily be recommended as listening for enthusiasts, as well as for those with a more focused interest. The quality of technical performance on this release is outstanding and the realization of the music very enjoyable. Those listeners who leap into something different will be richly rewarded.
